HONOR AT LAST DONE TO THE MEMORY OF FAMOUS PIONEER; CRAWFORD STATUE UNVEILED

Dedication of Fine Monument on Library Lawn Conducted Despite the Rain.

EXERCISES HELD INDOORS

Principal Addresses Made By Senator William C. Sprout and Dr. George C. Donehoo, of State Historic Commission; Land Late H. P. Snyder.

With a distinguished audience gathered about, Miss Louise Soisson and Master Henry P. Snyder, Jr., lineal descendants of Connellsville's illustrious pioneer, whose memory was being honored, yesterday afternoon drew the strings which loosed a big American flag and exposed to view the handsome bronze statue of Colonel William Crawford on the library grounds.

The event took on particular significance at this time, as the speakers pointed out, because we are now engaged in a war against barbarism and savagery, just as was Crawford in his expedition against Sandusky, in which he met his tragic death, at the stake.

Throughout the ceremonies, it occurred, as was only fitting, that the late Henry P. Snyder, editor of The Courier, should be constantly referred to as the man to whom the erection of the memorial was directly due. As Dr. Donehoo, the principal speaker of the day, said, the statue is not only a monument to the illustrious martyr of the Yough, Colonel Crawford, but a monument to the untiring interest and energy of Mr. Snyder. The one bit of sadness that ran through the entire occasion was caused by the knowledge that Mr. Snyder could not be present to see the realization of one of his most cherished ambitions.

The heavy downpour of rain marred the ceremony to a certain extent, and it was necessary to hold the exercises, with the exception of the actual unveiling, in the Carnegie library auditorium. Here was gathered an audience consisting of representative men and women of the city, distinguished visitors, and some 350 school children, dismissed for the occasion.

Seated on the platform were four members of the state historical commission, 16 veterans of the Civil War, Rev. E. B. Burgess, secretary of the Crawford Memorial commission and chairman of the meeting, Mayor Rockwell Marietta, another member of the local commission, Mrs. C. S. Kilpatrick, wife of the sculptor of the monument, Miss Soisson and Master Snyder, and the Connellsville Military band. The members of the state commission, all of whom made speeches, were: Senator William C. Sprout of Chester, the chairman; Dr. George C. Donehoo of Connersport, secretary; William H. Stevenson of Pittsburgh, treasurer; and General A. E. Sisson of Erie. Thomas L. Montgomery of Harrisburg, the curator, arrived here just at the close of the exercises.

In the audience were seated Worth Kilpatrick, chairman of the Crawford Memorial commission; Congressman E. H. Robbins of Greensburg; Councilmen M. B. Pryce, John Duggan, L. L. West and J. H. Guynn, and other city officials.

The exercises began with the playing of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" by the band, following which Rev. C. E. Wagner of the Trinity Reformed church made the invocation, and the audience sang "America."

Rev. Burgess, in introducing Senator Sprout as the first speaker, said: "In 1767, only a few generations ago, this vicinity was nothing but a wilderness. At the spot where the Catawba trail crossed the Yough river, at the historic Stewart's crossing, at a point now situated on the West Side of this city, Colonel Crawford built his home. We are dedicating here today a monument to the city's first resident."

Rev. Burgess sketched briefly the history of the monument, telling how Mr. Snyder had been interested and continually agitating for the memorial. "Had he been here today," he said, "he would certainly have realized one of the greatest desires of his heart." Rev. Burgess also explained how pleased the commission was with the work of the sculptor, C. S. Kilpatrick, "a local boy," as the minister referred to him.

MOVEMENT ONE TO BE PROUD OF SAYS SENATOR SPROUT

Senator William C. Sprout of Chester, chairman of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission and author of legislation creating that body, spoke of the purposes and plans of the commission and told of the useful work it was doing in stimulating interest in our state and national history in the various counties of the commonwealth.

Senator Sprout paid a tribute to the late Henry P. Snyder, expressing at the very beginning of his speech his extreme regret that he could not have lived to see the dedication of the monument for which he worked so successfully. "We must not give all credit to Mr. Snyder and Mr. Burgess and the others for the monument, however," he said, "but must remember that a Connellsville man designed the handsome statue. You Connellsville people can be proud of Mr. Kilpatrick. I don't know a great deal about art, but I have seen a good many monuments on Page Three.

The William Crawford Monument.

The Colonel William Crawford monument, was erected by the people of Connellsville and the State Historical Commission to mark the home of Connellsville's revolutionary pioneer who was burned at the stake by savage Indians near what is now Crawfordsville, Ohio, on June 11, 1782.

The statue is of bronze and stands upon a granite pedestal. It was designed by C. S. Kilpatrick of Connellsville and executed and erected under his direction. It cost $3,442.

The Crawford Memorial Commission, which had charge of the monument plan, was originally composed of Henry P. Snyder, late editor of The Courier, Worth Kilpatrick and Rev. Ellis B. Burgess. After the death of Mr. Snyder, Mayor Rockwell Marietta was named on the board and Mr. Kilpatrick succeeded Mr. Snyder as chairman.

The inscription on the tablet which adorns the granite base was written by Rev. Ellis B. Burgess and approved by the State Historical Commission.

27 KILLED, 53 INJURED IN ZEPPELIN RAID ON ENGLAND

Seven or More German Airships Drop Bombs on British Towns.

SOME PROPERTY DAMAGED

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Twenty-seven persons were killed and 53 injured in last night's Zeppelin raid. The following announcement was made: "In last night's airship raid the casualties in all districts were: Killed, 27; injured, 53. There was some material damage to houses and business premises."

AN EAST COAST TOWN, Oct. 20.—

Seven or more Zeppelins crossed the east coast at about 8 o'clock last night, four going in one direction and three in another.

At 11:30 one Zeppelin passed out on its homeward journey. This airship dropped six bombs at 11 o'clock and three at 11:25.

PROTECTIVE GUNS KEEP ZEPPELINS FROM LONDON.

German Zeppelins last night raided the eastern and northeastern coast of England and approached London. Six or seven airships, participating in the raid, were dropped in various places.

Although a few bombs fell in the London area, the protective batteries were busy only a few minutes and it is believed the raiders were checked effectively from making any serious attempt at the inner part of the city.

Apparently the Russian fleet in the battle in and around Moon sound, north of the Gulf of Riga, gave good account of itself against the superior enemy. The Russian admiralty says the entire third and fourth squadrons of the German high seas fleet and probably the fifth squadron took part. The three squadrons comprised two-thirds of the German fleet. The battleship Slava was the only unit of the Russian fleet lost, while the Russians accounted for two trawlers.

Each, which had charge of the monument plan, was originally composed of Henry P. Snyder, late editor of The Courier, Worth Kilpatrick and Rev. Ellis B. Burgess. After the death of Mr. Snyder, Mayor Rockwell Marietta was named on the board and Mr. Kilpatrick succeeded Mr. Snyder as chairman.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION URGES BUSINESS HOUSES TO CLOSE ON LIBERTY DAY

To the citizens of our city: Being chief executive of your city, we deem it our duty as well as your duty to render every assistance possible to the demands of our government, in carrying out our country's interest in a successful termination. We all have equal duties to perform according to our means and abilities. The one important issue before us is the purchasing of war bonds, to assist in financing the present war, to perpetuate our liberty and give liberty to the down-trodden nations.

Liberty is a priceless boon to America. We hope our people will not be indifferent to this appeal. The sinking of a conveyance with the loss of 73 American lives, as reported today, should bring our people to a fuller realization that we are in war. If, at any time in the history of our country, in justice to ourselves, we owe true allegiance to our government, it is now.

Be a patriot. If you do not love the country of your birth or adoption, you are not a true patriot. There are millions of people today in the United States who have pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to perpetuate our freedom. Why not all our citizens be pledged to this cause?

I, R. Marietta, Mayor of your city, do set apart Wednesday, October 24, 1917, as Liberty Day for the City of Connellsville in compliance with a request of our national government and would ask our merchants, bankers and all business places to close at 2 P. M., and remain closed until 5 P. M., on said day, that we may rally to the assistance of those who are soliciting the sale of Liberty Bonds and also join in the patriotic parade. There will be no automobiles or other vehicles in line of parade. You will march to the strains of music on this occasion. Would request that all buildings be decorated on Liberty Day.

BOND CELEBRATION WILL BE FOLLOWED BY SALES CAMPAIGN

Stores and Banks to Be Closed Wednesday Afternoon But Open in Evening.

Next Wednesday's monster Liberty Day parade will start promptly at 3 o'clock, the committee announced today. It will form at 2:30 o'clock on Johnston, Highland and York avenues. The procession will march down Fayette to Pittsburgh, out to Pittsburgh, over Crawford to the Western Maryland station, counter marching back over Crawford avenue to Pittsburgh, out to Green, up Green to Race, down Race and Lincoln to Pittsburgh and disband at the Crawford monument.

Mayor Marietta commands and the committee requests that no automobiles or other vehicles be on the streets over which the parade will move. All organizations that will participate are expected to report promptly so that the parade can start on schedule time. The mayor's proclamation, printed above, calls upon all business houses to close between 2 and 5 P. M. Banks and business places, however, will be open from 7 to 9 Wednesday night so as to keep people at home and stimulate Liberty Bond buying.

Ministers have been requested to announce the parade and celebration from their pulpits tomorrow and urge their congregations and organizations to take part.

Speakers for the big Liberty Day rally on Wednesday have been selected. They were announced this morning as Dr. Robert MacDonald of Pittsburgh and Dr. George P. Donehoo of Connersport, secretary of the state historical commission, who made the principal address at the Crawford memorial dedication yesterday.

ARMY FLIER HERE

H. S. Long Visiting His Father, Rev. A. M. Long.

H. S. Long, now a sergeant in the aviation corps, stationed at Mount Clemens, Mich., arrived home yesterday on a five-day furlough, which he will spend with his father, Rev. A. M. Long of Poplar Grove. Young Long is well known here, having been an employee of the Tri-State Candy company, before his enlistment.

Long is a candidate for a lieutenant in the corps. He is home to have his eyes "fixed up," and will learn the result of his examination for a commission when he returns to camp.

TO PRAY FOR WAR SUCCESS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—President Wilson by proclamation today declared Sunday, October 28, as a day of prayers for the success of the American arms in the war in accordance with the recent resolution of Congress.

MEMORIAL A REALIZATION OF HOPES AND EFFORTS OF THE LATE HENRY P. SNYDER

The Late Henry P. Snyder.

The Colonel William Crawford statue stands on the library lawn today as a result of the lifelong ambition of Henry P. Snyder, late editor of The Courier, to have a memorial to the city's illustrious pioneer, and the work which he did toward raising funds for such a memorial. Mr. Snyder had for years been agitating, personally, and through the columns of his paper, for a movement to erect some sort of a monument to Colonel Crawford. As far back as 1887, a mass meeting was held at which speakers told of Crawford's life and adventures. A campaign was inaugurated to raise money for a memorial, but lack of interest caused it to drop by the wayside. Later, Mr. Snyder had Congressman Atchison ask for a congressional appropriation, and secured permission of the Carnegie library trustees to place the memorial, which he felt sure was coming now, on the library grounds. The time proved inauspicious, however, and the project was again dropped.

The final successful campaign for a monument began in 1915, when the matter was taken up again after some correspondence between Rev. E. B. Burgess and Dr. George P. Donehoo, of the state historical commission, in which Colonel Crawford was referred to, somewhat indirectly. Rev. Burgess that summer was preparing a historical address to be delivered at Old Fort Morris, Preston Co., W. Va., where bronze tablets had been placed as markers. Writing to Rev. Burgess in connection with the Fort Morris ceremonies, on May 18, 1916, Mr. Donehoo said, "I wish you could get someone to work on markers for Stewart's crossing," and other historical points in the vicinity. The historical commission, he said, would help such a project by giving $100 to $500 but would not do all the work. Rev. Burgess showed the letter to Mr. Snyder and the memorial plan was thus revived.

The original plan was to place markers, bronze tablets in the form of keystones, at half a dozen historical sites in the vicinity. The plan grew and grew. The commission suggested that a huge granite boulder be placed on the city hall grounds as a memorial, and Mr. Snyder favored putting on this boulder a bronze bas-relief showing Crawford burned at the stake. Finally, when Mr. Snyder had raised $1,185 by personal work, it was decided that a life-size or heroic-size statue would be best of all, and this was secured. All this progress was spread over a period of more than a year, however.

On July 7, 1915, the State Historical Commission, meeting at Philadelphia, voted to appropriate $500, "or as much of that as needed to erect markers at Stewart's crossing and Colonel William Crawford's home," provided the city officials and citizens of Connellsville would raise a similar amount. Securing $500, the largest sum given any city up to that time by the commission, came as a surprise to Dr. Donehoo, who, at most, had expected $250, previously secured.

On August 9, city council passed, unanimously, a resolution accepting the state commission's offer of $500, and meeting its condition by appropriating $500 from the contingent fund. On August 14, Mr. Snyder wrote to Dr. Donehoo informing him of this action, and saying, "I will try to raise some additional funds." The project then passed from public notice for nearly a year. On June 12, 1916, Mr. Snyder wrote to city council and made known the fact that he had personally solicited $1,185, making the total monument fund $2,185. Mayor Rockwell Marietta then appointed a commission of three men to administer this fund: Henry P. Snyder, Rev. E. B. Burgess and Worth Kilpatrick. They took active charge at once, meeting on June 16, and electing Mr. Snyder president and Rev. Burgess secretary of the commission. It was decided that a life-size or heroic-size statue be erected, and it was first desired that this figure be placed on a huge block of native stone.

On August 31, Charles S. Kilpatrick submitted charcoal sketches of the proposed monument which he offered to make in bronze, heroic size, for $2,500. The offer was accepted and a formal contract entered into with him.

Following Mr. Snyder's death, the commission reorganized, on November 14, by electing Mr. Kilpatrick president of the commission and Mayor Marietta an associate member. On November 24, it was found that $743 was still required to erect the monument, and Mayor Marietta was requested to ask council to increase the amount of its appropriation from $500 to $750, the state commission having increased its amount to $750 on condition that council do the same. Council made the increase, unanimously again.

On February 16, the contract was let to Palmer Brothers for the placing of a three-piece granite base, for $700, since it was found impossible to transport a huge granite rock here as proposed. It was then announced that the monument would be placed on the library lawn, and not the city hall lawn, as had been planned.

Rev. Burgess wrote the inscription, and it was approved by the state commission. On February 27, it was decided to have Mr. Snyder's pamphlets on Crawford distributed among the school teachers, they being asked to tell their pupils something of the colonel's life. A collection taken in the schools amounted to $115 and the D. A. R. raised $125 for the monument fund.

It was planned to place the statue on the library walk, with a divided walk around it, but this was found to be unfeasible, and the present location, on the lawn, was decided upon. The dedication was set for May 31, then postponed to July 4, and then postponed indefinitely, because the granite base had been held up in Springfield, Mass., while being freighted about. On August 31, the dedication date was set for October 19, and plans for the program made.

The monument cost, roughly, $2,442, and it is dedicated with the entire amount either collected or pledged, the last pledges freeing it of debt having been paid only a few days ago.

Bank Robbers Got $20,000. MIDDLEVILLE, Mich., Oct. 20.—Three burglars in an automobile drove into Middleville early today broke the safe in the Farmers' State bank and escaped with $20,000. Five explosions were heard, but so far as can be learned no one opposed the burglars.

CITY MAY EXCEED GOAL OF $500,000 IN LIBERTY BONDS

Campaign in Connellsville Takes Big Spurt and Good Results Are Certain.

BOY SCOUTS HELPING MUCH

House to House Canvass by Patriotic Lads is Having Its Effect; Stirring Talk by Pittsburg Pastor Heard by a Small Crowd at the Library.

The Liberty loan campaign in Connellsville this morning took a spurt which local bankers declare presages more than satisfactory results in the drive for dollars to win the war. For some time, it is admitted, the bond selling campaign has been lagging, but it seems that the people have now awakened to the seriousness of the measure, and that Connellsville will gain its goal of $500,000, while men in a position to know declare it will go well above that figure.

Whether the mass meeting last night and the preparations for a big Liberty Day celebration helped arouse the people or not, it is certain that the spirit is at least partly due to the activities of the Boy Scouts, who started their house-to-house campaign this morning. The Scouts' bond-selling met with pronounced success. Early this morning the applications secured by them began pouring into the banks. Most of the bonds sold by the boys were of the $50 variety, and though a purchaser need give the scout no money, many people insisted upon the boy solicitors taking $1, the first payments, down to the bank for them.

The local bankers have made up reports as yet to the county committee on the campaign. In most of the banks, the total sales have not yet been figured up, but up until today, they were below the expected amount. Today's sales, however, the indications were, would raise the total to a large figure. J. A. Armstrong of the Second National bank said that he received over $6,000 in subscriptions this morning before the doors of the bank had been opened. A Pittsburg man sent the First National a check for $1,000 this morning for that amount of the issue.

A small crowd of patriots, supporting the Liberty Bond movement in this city gathered at the mass meeting held in the library auditorium last night, and heard Rev. Samuel Callen, of the Fourth Presbyterian church of Pittsburgh, give one of the most forceful and eloquent addresses yet heard here on the bond question. He urged all true Americans, if not for their own sakes, then out of gratitude to the Allies, to subscribe to the bond issue.

"If we would only think on these things and remember we have allied ourselves with these governments and that we must back them up with our dollars," he said. Declaring that the line of demarcation, placing autocracy on one side and democracy on the other, had been drawn when the revolution in Russia broke forth and freed that country from absolutism, Rev. Callen defined both.

"Autocracy," he said, "is a form of government organized in the interests of the government. Democracy is a government in the interests of the governed. Autocracy rules in absolute authority, and in a democracy the people rule and rule in their own interests."

Rev. Callen gave incidents of history which showed that Americans owed both England and France a debt—to France for her aid in the Revolution when she made it possible for America to become a republic, and to England, when after the battle of Manila and Admiral Dewey was out of ammunition, the commander of the German fleet asked the British admiral what his attitude would be if he fired on Dewey, and the reply was, "What we will do is known only to Admiral Dewey and the British government."

Referring to Senators LaFollette and Stone, he declared vehemently, "What right has any man in a seat in the Senate to oppose the prosecution of the war. He is either influenced by German gold or is a German at heart, which is worse. Such a man is a traitor. LaFollette and Stone, the fifth of the Senate, should either be made to shut their mouths or be interned for the period of the war."

"We ought to back up the men that are out there fighting for us with our last dollar and last drop of blood, else we are traitors to the Stars and Stripes. Out of gratitude we ought to give our best blood and last dollar. Why, in the revolution France bought $50,000,000 of our bonds when it was a shame to sell them, when they were not worth the paper they were printed on. Shall we forget that?"

Rounds of applause followed Rev. Callen's speech.

"What a Liberty Bond is" was explained by Eugene T. Norton. He told of the installment plan for paying on the bonds and how the interest would be paid semi-annually.

The speakers were introduced by Captain E. Dunn, who also made a short talk.

Most of those present were women who will take part in the bond campaign to be made throughout the city.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Ten couples were present at a dance given in the Colonial Inn last night by a committee consisting of William D. Clasper and Charles Scheller. All had an enjoyable evening. Dancing was indulged in from 9 until 12 o'clock. Out-of-town guests were Miss Bertha Winslow of Dawson; Miss Daisy Cossel, Miss Miller, and Lyle Fickinger of Homer City.

The Tuesday Music Club has announced that owing to a misunderstanding, the Carnegie library hall will not be available for Tuesday evening, and the next concert of the club will be held on Thursday, October 25. The concert will consist of numbers by members of the club. The library will be used on Tuesday night by the Business & Professional Men's association who are to hear an illustrated lecture.

Mrs. Eliza Savage has received word of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Josephine Savage of Steubenville, O., and Michael Pittas, solemnized in Wilkinsburg. The bridegroom is a brother of Joan Pittas of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Pittas will reside in Steubenville, O.

About 20 persons attended the monthly business and social meeting of the Oward class of the Methodist Protestant Sunday school held last evening in the church. The hostesses were Mrs. J. H. Lamberson, Mrs. William F. Brooks and Miss Ida Stillwagon. During the business meeting $75 was paid towards the amount pledged the new Sunday school fund. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. W. P. Clark, Mrs. Elizabeth Maust, Mrs. J. A. McCrory, Mrs. David Long, Mrs. G. W. Campbell, Mrs. A. B. Pierson, Mrs. H. L. Pierson, and Mrs. W. R. Clasper, attended a Dutch market held Thursday night in the First Methodist Episcopal church of Uniontown under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the church.

The T. C. T. Fancywork club was delightfully entertained last evening by Misses Clara and Elizabeth Patterson at their home in West Morton avenue. Twenty guests attended and spent a very enjoyable evening at fancywork. Refreshments were served. Miss Bertha Hooper will entertain the club Friday evening, November 2, at her home in North Sixth street, West Side.

Members and friends of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Baptist church were charmingly entertained last evening by Mrs. August C. Stickle at her home in Chestnut street. It was the semi-monthly meeting of the society and the attendance was the largest and the meeting the best in recent years. Striking appointments, significant of Hallowe'en were beautifully carried out. A color scheme of yellow and black prevailed in the decorations and delicious luncheon served later in the evening. The favors were small jarliners adorned with pumpkins and filled with candy. At the conclusion of a short business meeting the following entertainment program was given: Music, quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. S. Dull, Mrs. N. T. Hibben and Charles Bailey accompanied by Mrs. E. N. Stahl; vocal solos, Mrs. N. T. Hibben; piano solo, Mrs. John Brown; piano duet, Mrs. E. N. Stahl, and Mrs. Jesse Brown; readings, Mrs. Smith Grimm. Every number was rendered in a very capable manner. Mrs. C. V. Gernert of Pittsburgh was an out of town guest. The date and place of the next meeting will be announced later.

The C. L. Girls Fancywork club was entertained last evening by Miss Marie Jamieson at her home in South Connelville. About twelve persons attended and spent a very enjoyable evening at fancywork. Refreshments were served.

A farewell banquet was given last evening at Bishop's restaurant in honor of E. A. Bailey, a draftsman, who leaves soon for Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va. Covers for twenty were laid. Karl K. Kramer was toastmaster and presented Mr. Bailey with a complete comfort outfit enclosed in a leather traveling bag. A musical program, including selections by Kiefer's orchestra, solos by J. Lester Magaha, Lester Crawford and Miss Nellie Walters, was rendered. Among the guests were Dr. Jesse Hazlett of Vanderbilt; Dr. H. P. Martin of Pittsburgh; Dr. C. M. McKens of Greensburg; C. Scott of Pittsburgh; Hon. David J. Lewis of Washington, D. C.; William Barron of Hagerstown, Md.; Karl K. Kramer, Lester Crawford, George Baker, Fred Repper, H. Marshall, C. J. Packman, Homer Moser, A. W. Bishop, G. Hopkirk, Milton Keller, William Bishop, Joan Kiefer and J. Lester Magaha.

COMMISSION WILL DONATE TOWARD A BUSHY RUN SHAFT

Other Memorial Projects in This Section Will Also Be Assisted.

The State Historical commission in session here yesterday, decided to appropriate toward a $2,500 shaft to be erected at Bushy Run, near Greensburg, provided the people of that city make as much or more. Congressman Edward E. Robbins of Greensburg, who witnessed the dedication of the Crawford memorial, appeared before the commission in behalf of the project.

Several other appropriations were made to mark historical spots in Western Pennsylvania. One thousand dollars was appropriated for a shaft to commemorate a battle with the Indians in 1768 at Cherry Tree, Clearfield county.

Another appropriation will be made for a shaft at Logstown, formerly an old Indian village, visited by George Washington in 1763. A bronze tablet will be given to adorn a shaft to cost not less than $1,000, the money to be raised by the people of the vicinity, to mark a camp site of General Anthony Wayne's expedition against the Indians of Ohio in 1795, near Sewickley.

The commission met at 123 East Crawford avenue, the home of Mrs. Donehue, shortly after the memorial dedication ceremonies had been concluded. Five of the six members of the commission were present: Senator Sprout, Dr. Donehue, Mr. Stevenson, General Sisson and Mr. Montgomery. All but Mr. Montgomery, who arrived late from Harrisburg, were present at a noon luncheon served in the Arlington hotel, with Dr. Donehue as host.

Members of the commission went to Greensburg this morning to view the Bushy Run battlefield. They were conducted to the spot by Congressman E. E. Robbins and County Superintendent of Schools R. C. Shaw. Money has already been raised for the erection of a monument there, and the commission's appropriation will be added to that fund.

RACES POSTPONED

Uniontown Speedway Program to be Carried Out Next Saturday.

Postponement of the Autumn classic at the Uniontown Speedway until next Saturday was announced last evening at the Speedway offices. The postponement was caused by the incessant downpour which was prevalent almost all day yesterday and the sudden drop in temperature.

The speedway course will be open all afternoon and practice spins will be made by many of the drivers. Some of the cars are expected to qualify this afternoon, while others will do their official turn one day next week. The same program will be carried out next Saturday as was arranged for the meet today.

W. S. BRYAN.

The funeral of W. S. Bryan, who died in the Mercy hospital, Pittsburgh, of injuries suffered in an automobile accident, was held yesterday afternoon from the family residence in Carnegie. Many relatives and friends of the deceased attended, and the floral tributes were numerous and unusually handsome. The accident occurred on the Brownsville road, about a mile and a half south of Broughton, where Mr. Bryan was to attend a school meeting.

Mr. Bryan was born at Bryan, Lower Tyrone township, and was well known through Fayette county. He had been assistant superintendent of the Allegheny county schools for about eight years. He served as principal of the Carnegie schools for a number of years and also of the Brownsville school. At one time he was an instructor at the California State Normal. He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Helen Linger, and one son, William Bryan. Mrs. A. A. Wetzel of this city, Mrs. E. E. Brallier, Miss Edna Smith of Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stouffer and Harry Bryan of Scotland, attended the funeral.

DAVID BROWN.

HONOR FINALLY DONE TO MEMORY OF COL. CRAWFORD

Two great monuments and this is certainly very impressive, impressive, and striking."

Senator Sprout complimented the city and people of Connelville upon their achievement in providing the funds for the handsome memorial and said the historical commission was glad to co-operate in such an undertaking. He explained that while the commission had the power to erect monuments upon its own initiative and had done this in a few instances, it preferred to aid in local movements in conjunction with organizations which would care for the monuments or landmarks and thus stimulate neighborhood interest and history.

"Pennsylvania is a veritable storehouse of history," said the senator. "In the East are the places which witnessed the events connected with Pennsylvania's establishment here of that 'holy experiment' in government which anticipated by several generations the liberty realized by the Revolution. Indeed, a reading now of the writings of William Penn shows him to have been almost prophetic in his outlines of the principles for which men fight now are contending in the present mighty struggle for Democracy. Penn was a pioneer and was a great man—a thinker and a statesman whom we may be proud to have as our particular historical patron saint of Pennsylvania."

Senator Sprout then told briefly of the work of men of the type of Crawford and his contemporaries, who, braving hardships and dangers, constant and imminent attacks, have been the mighty commonwealth, "the sturdy, self-reliant, self-protecting and self-reliant state on the face of the earth" from the primeval forests. They were a type whose memory should not only be held in reverence but whose zeal and patriotism should be remembered and whose principles should be kept inviolate for the safety and perpetuity of the republic.

"Now, confronted with the greatest problems of all our history; following a course uncharted and with only the stars of hope, of justice, of democracy and humanity as our guides, let us hold fast to the faith in men, in ourselves, and in God, which led the pioneers to the deeds of bravery and faithfulness which make possible the blessings we have today, so that we of this generation may successfully accomplish the great tasks we have set ourselves to do and keep the world—the whole world—safe for the rights of mankind," continued the speaker.

LARGES MARKING OF MORE HISTORIC SPOTS.
Dr. Donohoe's address paid tribute to the late Henry F. Snyder for the part he took in erecting the monument and called attention to how rich Western Pennsylvania is in historic spots, but how neglected in suitable monuments and markers. The eastern section of the state, he brought out, is covered with markings of historic locations while outside of the monument at Braddock's grave, only erected a few years ago, a tablet on the site of Fort Mifflin, and now, the Crawford monument, Western Pennsylvania has none.

"I am glad that the people of Fayette county have at last given suitable recognition to the life and memory of Colonel William Crawford," Dr. Donohoe declared. "I am very sorry that the late Henry F. Snyder did not live to see the completion of the plans, the start of which had his hearty support. The erection of some memorial in Connelville, in honor of the early friend of Washington, had for many years been his earnest desire. The erection of such a memorial was one of his topics of conversation with the speaker the first time we met some years ago. All of the plans for the placing of this monument had his most careful consideration from the first suggestion of this work until the time of his death. This memorial is in a sense a monument to his untiring efforts through many years."

"As Mr. Snyder himself gave an address concerning the life and death of Colonel Crawford before the Washington County Historical Society, which has recently been reprinted and distributed in this region, I do not think it is necessary to make that the topic of my remarks."

Declaring that the early history of this region has never been given the credit it deserves, the speaker sketched the historic influence which "crossed the Youghiogheny at this place and entered into the making of the empire which now sweeps westward to the Golden Gate of the Pacific."

"All of the first influences of civilization which touched the brooding wilderness on this side of the 'impassable mountains,' as they were called, entered by the winding Indian trail which ran from the Potomac to the Ohio. This trail crossed the river not far from this spot, at the site where Colonel William Crawford built his log cabin in 1765. There were many other Indian paths across the mountain ranges, leading from the Upper Delaware and from the site where William Penn made his first settlement in the state. But the plan of the Indians was to open a pathway through the untrodden mountains to the endless forests of the Ohio Valley, leading from the Potomac and the rugged mountains of Virginia, so that a young survivor might start a nation in its pathway of glory and world liberation. Had the influences of civilization walked over the trail from Philadelphia and Lancaster, instead of from Virginia, the life of Washington would never have been what it was and a nation might never have been born. The organization of the Ohio company, in Virginia, and the interest of the bluff, old saltwater governor Dinwiddie in the region beyond the mountains were not acidents. They were but the first links in a chain of tremendous events, and the final links have not been forged. The narrow winding Indian trail from the mouth of the Ohio Creek was destined to be one over which civilization was to first walk into conflict with trained mountain savagery, and over which the Anglo-Saxon culture was to march to the conquest of a continent.

"Many of the events which took place along the course of this trail seemed of small consequence at the time they were enacted. But the tremendous issues which depended upon these events have not yet reached their final development nor are their influences yet fully comprehended."

Touching upon the strange fact that for 250 years after the discovery of this continent the whole country along the Allegheny River remained an unknown wilderness, Dr. Donohoe called attention to the fact that the first actual, historically proven, settlement west of the mountains was made in 1760 by Christopher Gist, at Mount Braddock, near here, when he selected the site for his settlement and commenced the erection of log houses for 11 families.

"This site should be suitably marked," Dr. Donohoe declared.

A new point brought out by the speaker was that the reason why Colonel Crawford was so long receiving his proper recognition was because of the many claims to this territory. Crawford was a Virginian and in the boundary dispute naturally took the part of the Virginians against the Pennsylvanians.

At the close of the Revolution when the Indians became troublesome it was decided that a blow must be struck at the chief source of all Indian hostility, along the Sandusky in Ohio, where the Wyandot and the hostile Delaware made their headquarters. "It must be borne in mind that the expedition against Sandusky was not in the same class as that of Colonel Williamson against the Moravian villages," Dr. Donohoe declared. "Colonel William Crawford was an officer in the Regular Army, holding a commission as colonel in the Virginia line. The expedition had the approval of General William B. Irvine, the commander at Fort Pitt and also that of Washington. It was an expedition of the United States against the hostile Indians and British sympathizers at Detroit."

"General Irvine, in writing to Washington, said, 'I have taken some pains to get Colonel Crawford appointed to command and hope he will be. He left me yesterday on his way to the place of rendezvous. He does not wish to go with a smaller number than 400; whether this number will assemble I cannot say.' Colonel Crawford left his home at Stewart's Crossings on May 15, 1782. His wife accompanied him to this side of the Youghiogheny, parting with him at the crossing place on the trail to Fort Pitt. He went to the rendezvous at Mingo Bottom, below Steubenville, by way of Pittsburgh and was elected commander of the expedition on May 24. Early on the morning of May 25, the expedition started on its fateful and disastrous march toward the Wyandot villages on the Sandusky. Colonel Crawford was captured by the Indians and burned at the stake near the present Crawfordville, O., June 11, 1782."

"Butterfield says: 'The awful death of William Crawford, by torture, at the hands of merciless savages—heightened as it is by the knowledge that his fate not only affected Washington but caused a profound sensation, at the time, throughout the American army, during the Revolution, perished so miserably.'"

"It is fitting that here, where Colonel Crawford spent so many years of his life, that this monument should be erected in his honor, and in memory of the historic events which have taken place at Stewart's Crossings," Dr. Donohoe concluded.

Mr. Stevenson of the commission was called upon and spoke briefly, mainly to the children present. He asked them to remember Flag Day always and to think of George Washington as one of the wisest men who ever lived.

General Sisson also spoke briefly, on Colonel Crawford's life, and he drew a striking comparison between Crawford's wars and the present war, in both of which civilization fights barbarism.

The exercises in the auditorium closed shortly after 3:30, and all went to the library grounds. A big flag had been placed over the statue. Pretty little Miss Solsson, wearing a dress of red, white and blue, and Master Snyder drew the strings which held the flag, as Rev. Burgess said a few words, expressing the desire that the figure of Colonel Crawford, now exposed to the public view by these descendants of the pioneer, should forever be an inspiration to those who should gaze upon it. The band played "The Star Spangled Banner," and the ceremonies were concluded. The rain was driving hard throughout the exercises on the lawn, and all that could be seen of the crowd, it seemed, was the sea of umbrellas held above them.

Although the rain prevented exposing the public view of Mrs. Solsson, who with Henry P. Snyder, Jr., unveiled the monument, wore an elaborate red, white and blue gown, made in Colonial style. The skirt was of silver cloth, the waist being in tailored vest effect and made of blue corded taffeta, decorated in white silk embroidered stars. She carried a white silk enameled staff with an artistic bow of ribbon on it.

The Boy Scouts, under the direction of Scout Commissioner A. O. Stone, rendered efficient service as guides and pages. They arranged the flag over the statue.

Prussianism and Germany

Overmuch stress has been laid upon Germany and the Germans in all this discussion of the world war. Too little emphasis has been given Prussianism, which, after all is said and done, is responsible alone for the battle flames which are consuming half of Europe and claiming thousands of lives along the Flanders trench lines. For the two are by no means synonymous.

Prussianism, in the essence, means that autocratic element which dominates the destinies of the German empire and insidiously feeds the ambitions of the Kaiser for world dominion. It is the influence which has inspired the warlord to cause his munition plants, his navy yards, his training camps, to put in extra time for the last three or four decades in building up a war machine with which ultimately he hoped to crush Europe and extend his sphere of influence to the western continent.

It is the master mind which dominates the Wilhelmstrasse headquarters of the secret service which has so efficiently kept tab in recent years upon the doings throughout half a dozen European empires. Which has directed the work of the German diplomacy in all its devious and crooked ways both in Europe and America. Which has set up its spy system and maintained its slush funds both in Europe and America. Which is accountable for all of the duplicity and devilry that finally terminated in the present conflagration in Europe.

The Germans, as a people, know nothing of all this; know little of it, in fact, today. The German public, the rank and file of German citizenry, have not the advantages of the free press that America enjoys. Whenever a newspaper becomes too frank in its discussion of the things that most intimately concern the public, Prussianism finds a way to have it specially suppressed. The mission of the German press is to inspire its readers with greater loyalty to the Kaiser. And it has done its work.

Prussianism has been as treacherous with the German public as it has been with France, with England, with Russia, or with America. It has deceived and misled it. It has hoodwinked and betrayed it. It has made it a cat's paw and in the end it will seek to make it the goat.

But Prussianism will only succeed in destroying itself. There are no greater lovers of liberty than the Germans as we know them in America. When the smoke of battle clears away and peace once more comes in Europe, Democracy will find an enthusiastic and lasting welcome across the Rhine. The manager advises that trickle through the Prussian censorship all indicate this.

Left to itself, the German public would vote for peace tomorrow. In the end, it will wipe out Prussianism. Help speed the day by buying a bond.

TO HIRE DIRECTOR

Woman Will Have Charge of Red Cross Workrooms.

The workroom committee of the Red Cross has been given power to hire a woman competent of taking full charge of the Red Cross workrooms in the Federal building. The one chosen for the position must be a seamstress and able to give out any information regarding the work.

This was decided upon at a meeting of the new chairman, J. Fred Kuriz, and the executive committee held last evening in the Carnegie Free library. It was the first time the new chairman had met with the executive committee and the greater part of the meeting was spent in discussing the work which is being carried on by the Red Cross.

On Women's Loan Committee.
Miss Irene Hopkins, local girl who is a student at the University of Pittsburgh, has been appointed a member of the women's committee of the university to boost the sale of Liberty bonds. Miss Hopkins represents the School of Education on the committee.

HONORS BOTH.

There was one note of sadness in the exercises of the unveiling of the statue of Colonel William Crawford yesterday, the effect of which was accentuated by the leaden skies and the fitful rain-blasts of a bleak autumn day.

While those who gathered at the library to pay belated tribute to the memory of a man whose services, at least his life, were given that of a later time, and all who may come after us, can enjoy the blessings of civilization, the thought was uppermost in the minds of all that be through whose labors of love the event of the day had been made possible, had not been spared to witness the culmination of his life time's efforts.

Save for the interest the late Henry P. Snyder, lamented founder and editor of The Courier, aroused in the proposal to give fitting recognition to the most distinguished Conneltsville citizen of pioneer days, and the persistence with which he urged that this be done, it is doubtful if the project would have ever been carried to completion—assuredly not during the lifetime of any who were present yesterday.

As the direct result of Mr. Snyder's untiring efforts he was privileged, a short time preceding his death, which occurred one year ago yesterday lacking one week, to see all the plans perfected and the funds provided for the memorial which now graces the library lawn. But to witness the final gift of it to the people of Conneltsville as a heritage to unnumbered generations yet to come, was not his portion. Recalling that he had not been permitted to realize one of his most cherished desires, those who gathered yesterday felt that this was the one minor chord which was struck during an otherwise happy and impressive occasion.

There remains the consolation, however, that the name of Henry P. Snyder will forever be associated with that of Colonel William Crawford, and that the striking bronze figure which was unveiled yesterday will honor the memory of both.

TO SHORTEN THE WAR.

The effect in shortening the war of a heavy oversubscription to the Second issue of Liberty Bonds can hardly be overestimated. Says the Liberty Loan Publicity Bureau of the United States Treasury:

However brave a front Germany may endeavor to present to the outside world and to her own people, the truth is that she is facing fearful odds and is in dire straits. The embargo placed by President Wilson on American shipments to neutrals struck Germany a body blow, and shipments to her from South American countries are going to be stopped or greatly curtailed through our influence and our control over coal supplies needed by their navies and industries. Germany's efforts for peace are dictated largely by fear of America and America's power. The German people are crying for peace, and the time has come when she is shortly coming when the German Imperial Government must listen to the German people. They are being fed now on hopes of victory and stories of "classenations" among the American people and a lack of support of our government by our people.

Not more convincing argument could be made to the people of Germany of the hopelessness of victory being obtained by continued fighting than a great oversubscription to the Liberty Loan, demonstrating not only the tremendous power of America, but the fact that the American people are wholeheartedly in favor of prosecuting the war with vigor and willing to finance our government to the limit.

Every purchaser of a Liberty Bond not only supplies the means of war but it shoots a fact into the German mind—the fact that the American people are behind the American Army, and that there is no end to this war except the achievement of the ends that America is fighting for. Every purchaser of a Liberty Bond does something to end the war, does something to shorten the war.

When you shorten the war you shorten the terms of our soldiers who serve in France; you save many from death and suffering and privation.

HOW OUR SOLDIERS FIGHT

Recent dispatches from France tell that German prisoners are disgusted with the action of their officers whom they charge with holding back and refusing to expose themselves to the risks of war. Apparently our officers are not adopting these Teutonic tactics. On the contrary, it appears that the whole Expeditionary Army has been tremendously worked up and stimulated over a story of headlong daring in which three American generals figure. The first news of this to reach this country appears in a letter recently received by Julian Street of The Vigilante. It is from an American college boy serving in France, and reads as follows:

"The American soldiers over here have been gaining in impressiveness. We are all proud of them. There is a story going around, and I hear it from officers who say that they were present, that three of our newly-appointed generals who were invited to witness the recent French attack north of Verdun, asked if they might make the attack. So, instead of standing back on the hill, they went up and over with the French soldiers. At any rate the story gained credence and the Allies' troops have gone wild about it. It has raised a wonderful confidence in our whole army.

You save others from the dangerous voyage across submarine seas and the dangers of service in Europe. The success of the Liberty Loan will be a shortening of the war and a saving of American lives. We have given our sons to battle, we must lend our dollars to back them up, to make them powerful and effective, and as safe and as secure as may be.

Our unconquerable determination to fight to the end, to fight to the last man and the last dollar must be maintained. Today and yesterday, October 17, 1917, and bring to the German people the hopelessness of their struggle in behalf of the German Imperial Government against liberty, right, and justice and the American people.

Insuring our liberty against Prussian aggression is the biggest thing in our nation's life, hence it is the duty of everybody in Conneltsville to help make Liberty Day, next Wednesday, the biggest of all the big days we have ever had.

The weatherman seems to have been one of the very few who did not know how great was the service rendered the country by Colonel William Crawford.

With the sailors seeking acquaintance with the fair knitters of their comfort, sets a new charm will be added to the work of mercy and its popularity may be expected to grow.

Dunbar is aroused to the dangers of inactivity in fire protection and taking its cue from Conneltsville's department of public safety will go about remedying conditions with true Dunbarian energy and determination.

For that German Torpedo which found a target in the town-boat, the final gift of it to the people of Conneltsville as a heritage to unnumbered generations yet to come, was not his portion. Recalling that he had not been permitted to realize one of his most cherished desires, those who gathered yesterday felt that this was the one minor chord which was struck during an otherwise happy and impressive occasion.

There remains the consolation, however, that the name of Henry P. Snyder will forever be associated with that of Colonel William Crawford, and that the striking bronze figure which was unveiled yesterday will honor the memory of both.

Now that the Crawford memorial has been given to the people of Conneltsville, a course of instruction in local history should begin in our schools so that future generations will make no mistake in their choice of a companion subject to adorn the south side of the library lawn.

Looking Backward

News of the Past Condensed from the Files of The Courier.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1907.
Thomas Jenkins and bride, nee Miss Nevada Buttenmore, return home from their two months wedding trip. Joseph Dixon, the Water street artist, flushes and ships to New York an allegorical oil painting entitled "The Overthrow of the Nation's Curse" in conception and finished in detail. The models for the central figure are well known Conneltsville people.

John W. Long, formerly of New Haven, sells all his property here and in Scotland and locates in Washington, Pa., where he is in the contracting and building line.

A party of eastern journalists, among them F. W. Burton of the Boston Herald, Arthur Whitehouse of London, and others, visit the Grapewine Hotel under the direction of J. M. Guffy, the Boston scribe firing the big Brown well with a rocket, and speculating with expressions of wonder and admiration.

Jonas Murray drives here from Texas, 2,400 miles, in a covered road wagon, on the journey lasting five months. Jones left his Fayette county home 40 years ago to seek his fortune in the West. His wife died and was buried in Kansas, during the journey to Conneltsville.

E. C. Hall of Greensburg, Greene county, has become a resident of this place.

Dr. J. W. Baker preaches his introductory sermon in the Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday.

J. M. Kurtz, cashier of the First

"The attack itself was a marvelous thing. The strength and the spirit of the French troops was a surprise to all of us, even here, where we know them so well. They went forward so fast that they had to stop to wait for their own baggage to advance ahead of them. The artillery preparation, which had been going on for four days, was perfect. More and more the allies are using up shells in place of men. The number of French lost was almost unbelievably small. There were two baggage fires, by the way, one to protect the infantry advance and one behind the German lines, which accounts in some measure for the great number of German prisoners taken. But the Boches are willing prisoners. One hundred and twelve of them, for instance, deserted from a single Saxon regiment the night before the French infantry advanced.

"Tain repudiates the great offensive idea. A series of short quick jabs all along the line is what he pins his faith on. With the English advance in Flanders and with the surprise of the Italian attack, it seems to be working splendidly. At any rate, France was never in such a state of hope and confidence before."

National bank, attends the bankers' convention in Pittsburgh.

National and local are erected in front of several of the business houses. Grant Anderson hunts all over Bullskin and Conneltsville townships for two days and gets no game.

Professor Bratt, a graduate of Professor Brooks dancing academy, in Pittsburgh, opens a dancing school here.

The Baltimore and Ohio telegraph is formally transferred to the Western Union.

James Cunningham's team runs away on East Main street, the escapee resulting in the demolition of the wagon and the breaking of a water valve on the sidewalk near Martin's grocery.

Professor M. L. Beer, formerly principal of the Conneltsville public schools, delivers his introductory sermon at his residence in Greensburg, and leaves for Seattle, Washington Territory, where he will practice law and act as agent for some Pennsylvania capitalists.

Dr. R. K. Mansell, late of the Methodist Episcopal church of this place, preaches his introductory sermon in the First Methodist Episcopal church, McKeesport.

Thomas A. Madigan and Miss Amelia McGinnis are married at the Catholic church by Rev. Father McDermott.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1907.
Detailed report of the coke trade for the week ending Saturday, October 19, shows a total of 18,250 tons in the region of which 14,027 are in blast and 4,223 idle, with a total estimated production of 18,250 tons.

Shipments for the week aggregated 7,935 cars, distributed as follows: To Pittsburgh 2,881 cars, to points West, 3,759 cars; to points East, 1,295 cars, a decrease of 175 cars from the previous week.

Fire protection in Conneltsville is in a demoralized condition, town council hears. Many of the fire plugs are rusted and a number have dexters which the fire companies' engines will not fit. All the plugs need flushing.

Joseph Buchner and George Hietzel are elected to positions on the police force. Dr. J. L. Riser, S. E. Nelson, S. B. Robbins, William Henry Harrison Miller and James Caldwell.

Mrs. Charles Sullivan is elected mistress of the public building, Fred Opperman and P. J. Murphy also being candidates for the position.

An attempt is made to assassinate Burgess W. N. Porter of Scotland, unknown persons firing a bullet through the window at him as he is entering his home at 1015 E. Main street.

William Richardson, old and experienced miner, is the victim of a fall of slate at Levensburg No. 2.

The Conneltsville Methodist Episcopal church is making an effort to have J. A. Ballantyne, D. D., presiding elder of the McKeesport district, permanently located here.

Subscribers to the proposed new union rolling mill at Scotland hold a meeting and elect J. A. Ballantyne, D. D., president of the First National bank, treasurer.

South Side residents are declaring that an example should be made of the boy who shot runs on the street. The latter playing in the street between W. T. Colburn and Mill Run are burned to the ground with a loss of several thousand dollars.

The police building and the flouring mill of the Koozer heirs were on fire, but the flames were conquered, the people carrying water from the mill race.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1907.
Detailed report of the coke trade for the week ending Saturday, October 19, shows a total of 24,580 tons in the region of which 20,580 are in blast and 4,000 idle, with a total estimated production of 24,580 tons.

Shipments for the week aggregated 14,201 cars, distributed as follows: To Pittsburgh, 1,900 cars; to points West, 8,448 cars; to points East, 871 cars, an increase of 870 cars over the previous week.

Baltimore & Ohio ticket agents gather here and talk business, the meeting being presided over by C. A. Albright, the resident of their organization, and O. O. Crock the secretary.

Accurate record kept by the post-office employees shows that nearly 20,000 pieces of mail were handled here during the past week, and that the total revenue was $287.01.

The Proof in Sales!

The proof of the newspaper advertising pudding is not so much in the eating as in the delightful after effects.

To illustrate: A large Philadelphia manufacturer had used other media, and it was only after much persuasion he was induced to try newspapers.

After one year's experiment his sales manager wrote the BUREAU OF ADVERTISING:

"Results have been so encouraging as to sell our company a national campaign of advertising through the newspapers."

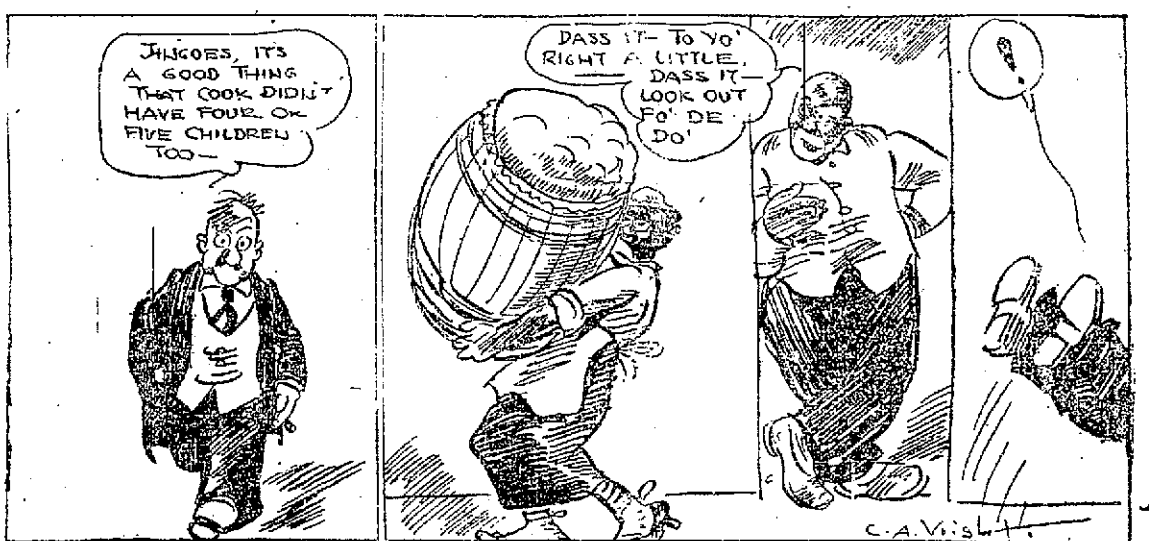

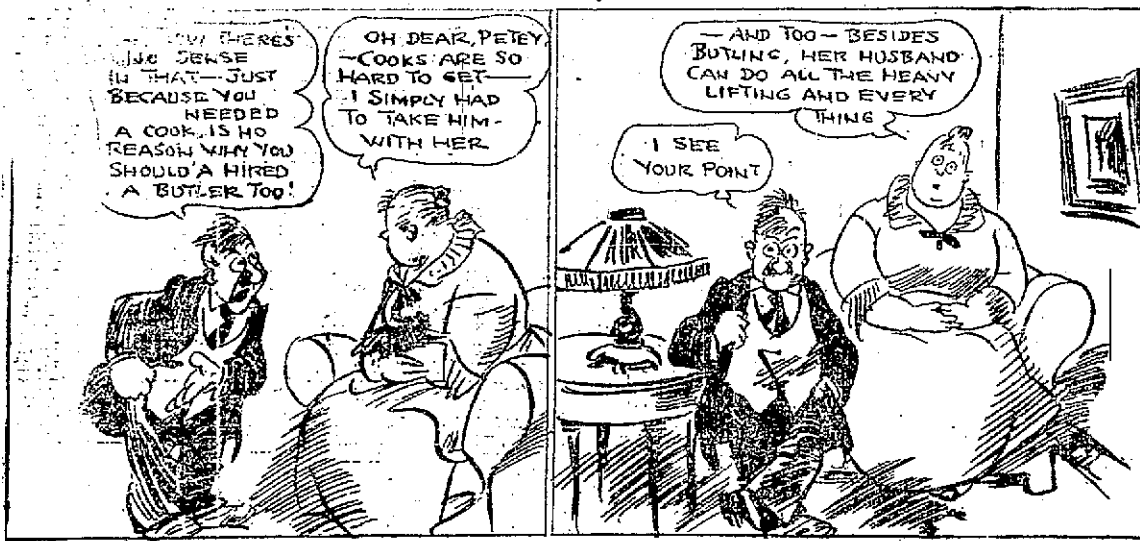

When all is said and done it is results that count. And newspaper advertising gives results.

The BUREAU OF ADVERTISING, American Newspaper Publishers Association, 806 World Bldg., New York City, will be glad to present facts to manufacturers and distributors on the use of newspaper advertising.

For Boys of Training Camps

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—"Keep the American soldier fit to fight, and help to win the war by making clean environment around all military camps," is the slogan on which is based the campaign of the War Camp community service. With the campaign well under way with the heart of the American people being aroused to the vital importance of proper surroundings for the men now preparing to fight the battles of democracy, confidence was expressed today by officials of the service here as to the outcome of the work.

Although much service already has furnished the men at the various camps by the people of the nearby cities and towns, a vast amount still remains to be done, it was pointed out here at the national headquarters of the service. Many of the smaller towns near training camps are taxing themselves to the utmost to care properly for the men in camps, who many times outnumber the populations of the surrounding communities by three or four times.

Encouraging reports are being received daily from all parts of the country showing the spirit in which America is welcoming its army, and it is to encourage this spirit and to aid the community in the great task of providing all sorts of good, clean recreation for the men in training, that the War Camp community service has been established.

Commanding army officers are approving this work and recognize that it will help to build up the morale, the fighting spirit and the actual military efficiency of the men. Major General Henry T. Allen, commander of Camp Travis, San Antonio, and other army officers have made similar statements—says in regard to the entertainment provided for the soldiers at San Antonio:

"The community service workers are not providing haphazard recreation but are giving these men in training something like unto what has been taken from them in their separation from home ties. The community service committee is not only effecting direct beneficial results to us by aiding in the creating of high moral standards and clean recreation, but indirectly it is influencing all classes of society to help toward our desired goal."

As to the way the men feel toward being made "at home," a young student aviator has written a letter in which he says:

"We enlisted men here like to be able to associate with the citizens. Most of the men want dances where they can meet decent people on a social footing. There is no mother, or wife, sweetheart or sister to love—and we want this human fellowship more than anything else, and it ought to be supplied us."

Interesting letters have been received here from a large number of the "boys" who have enjoyed the home hospitality of the good people in cities and towns near training camps. These letters, written over with the deep, sincere appreciation of the men toward the kindness shown them. In some cases the men, not able to express themselves well, have gone to their sergeant or one of the young lieutenants for assistance in framing up the letter of thanks they desired to send to people who had entertained them. For instance, one boy wrote, as follows:

"The dinner I attended yesterday was one of the most enjoyable events of my life. Such courtesies shown the boys by the good people of your town make them feel that they are appreciated, and certainly puts red blood in their veins and makes them more eager to defend Old Glory when called upon."

A letter from one fellow shows that the men miss home and friends and how they are eager to have someone extend the hand of friendship. "I have been in the Navy," he writes, "for almost six months and except for some friends of my brother here, I haven't met anyone at all. There are many fellows out here in the same position, or worse, who would appreciate the opportunity of meeting some people in the walk of life to which they are accustomed."

AFTER PRICE VIOLATIONS.

Ohio and Federal Authorities Will Prosecute Grasping Dealers.

Harry R. Conn, fuel administrator of Ohio, and United States District Attorney Wertz, have announced their intention to start criminal proceedings against Ohio coal operators and dealers who ignore or violate the price restrictions imposed by President Wilson.

Dealers detected charging more than in 1915, plus 20 per cent of the gross retail margin for that year, will have their licenses revoked and be forced out of business.

James S. Smith of Dunbar, who has been employed by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Braddock for the past year, has been transferred to a desk position in the freight office in Baltimore.

PROPHECY NEARING
FULFILLMENT

"The world war in prophecy" is the topic for an intensely interesting lecture that will be delivered at the Arcade Theatre, Scottsdale, Sunday, October 21, at 2 P. M., by Evangelist W. J. Thorne, of Boston, to which the public is cordially invited.

Mr. Thorne has spent many years on the lecture platform and is a popular speaker. His profound insight into Bible prophecies and their interpretations has helped many skeptics to accept the Holy Scriptures as the Divine inspired oracles of God and the only guide to the human race.

Mr. Thorne has chosen this timely subject because current events in the world are pointing to the fulfillment of those wonderful prophetic predictions in the immediate future, such as the overthrow of Satan's empire and the establishment of Christ's Kingdom for which our Lord taught us to pray "Thy Kingdom Come."

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS

President American Society for Thrift

It is interesting to note the various ways in which Americans are taking up the practice of thrift. It has been found that even the shark, one of man's most dangerous enemies, can be drafted into the service of conservation.

A corporation with fisheries in Alaska and Washington is preparing to erect a $300,000 plant at St. Petersburg, Fla., where sharks will be caught and their skins tanned. It is stated that there is as much value in an ordinary sized shark for leather as in a steer, though the cost of catching a shark is very small compared to that of raising a steer.

A process of producing alcohol from sawdust is offered by the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis. One ton of dry sawdust, worth 50 cents or less a ton will produce 15 to 25 gallons of 190-proof spirit. A plant large enough to distill 2,500 to 3,000 gallons daily can make alcohol at a cost of 14 to 20 cents a gallon.

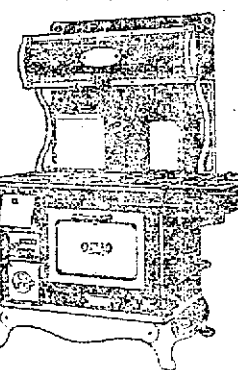

At a recent luncheon of the Cotton Seed Crushers Association in New Orleans, ginger snaps and cookies made from a combination of cottonseed flour and wheat flour were served. Cottonseed flour is also being made up into sausage somewhat like the peanut sausage used as a ration for German troops. Three pounds of sausage meat to one pound of cottonseed flour is the proportion, and the low cost of cottonseed flour as compared with meat effects a saving of 8 cents per pound on the sausage.

The garbage from an Omaha chain of restaurants is being fed to 400 hogs, of which 100 are ready for slaughter every three months. Pork is thus made so profitable that the Omaha Hotel Men's Association is forming a hog-raising organization. Hull, Mass., has a herd of 325 hogs, which turn garbage into pork. One man manages the entire herd, which started with young pigs bought by the town's committee of public safety.

A company at Moss Landing, Cal., has established a packing house for whale meat. The whales are caught with trollers and harpoon guns. Whale meat has become popular wherever introduced. The supply of food from this source is practically unlimited. A manufacturer in New Jersey is making a fine salad oil from the alligator pear. The State Dairy and Food Department of Michigan finds that alfalfa contains far resembling fresh butter, which may be used as food.

Truly, on every hand the battle against the monster waste goes on.

URIC ACID IN MEAT
CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally. Says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. Adv.

He folded the note and stuck a postage stamp on it in lieu of a seal. Then he examined the packs with the aid of the flashlight, sorted them and ordered two of the mules reloaded.
"You three!" he ordered then. "Take the loaded mules into Ah Masjid for Take this chit, you. Give it to the sahib in command there."
"To hear is to obey!" said the nearest man. They took the mules' lead reins, and before they had gone the packs were swallowed in the mist. It had begun to flow southeastward. The night grew still, except for the whining of jackals.

Ismael came nearer and squatted King's feet. Darya Khan came el too. King had tied the reins of two horses and the one remained together in a knot and was hung on the pack. Suddenly, all motionless, squatted on their hunches, looking like two great vultures watching an animal die.

They sat in silence for five minutes. Then suddenly the two hillmen dered, although King did not move. They burst into being. A ripped out of the night and thud down the pass.

"How-utt! Hukkums dar?" the insolent challenge half a second after it--the proof positive that Masjid's guards neither slept nor afraid.

A weird wail answered the challenge, and there began a tossing fro of words, that was proclaimed invitation:
